To earn an NRA Instructor credential in the discipline of your choice, three levels of courses must be completed.

Read below about Level 2 and 3 courses...

About Level 2 and Level 3 NRA Instructor Courses

Arrangements are being made to offer the NRA Basic Instructor (BIT) class and the individual instructor courses (NRA Pistol Instructor, NRA Rifle Instructor, and NRA Shotgun Instructor). These will be taught by NRA Regional Training Counselor Don Larson from Frontline Firearms Training. (at this time, Don is planning on offering a discount package price for all four courses.)

The Instructor classes will be held in April (over 2 weekends) - course dates and times are being finalized at the time of this publication (Potentially first and last weekend). Details will be available at the prerequisite Basic Courses.

Key Notes About All Instructor Courses:

- NRA requires that you first take (1) the Basic Course and (2) the BIT Course prior to taking an Instructor Course.
- Once the Instructor course is passed, the Instructor credential also requires an additional, separate NRA fee.
- One BIT class is good for all 3 Instructor classes.
- Shotgun Instructors must also complete a marksmanship qualification: From a straight away hit 16 of 25 clay pigeons)
- Pistol Instructors must complete marksmanship qualifications: 16 of 20 shots on a 9-inch plate at 45 feet away.
- One BIT Course is good for 2 years to add additional Instructor Credentials.
- The NRA Instructor credential is good for 2 years. If you pay your credential renewal fee and stay active in shooting, you never need to retake the classes to maintain your credentials.
- A minimum of one NRA Instructor and one NRA RSO are required to operate BSA Ranges. They must be two different people operating the range.
- The NRA requires a minimum of 4 students to hold a class. Sign up early to avoid a class being canceled!
